

Stories of Marcialonga superboy and Marcialonga supergirl

A new adventure, the battle of snowballs

After the winter Martin and Sofia tried new sports: run, bicycle, tennis and even swim and they realize that all sports approached with the right amount of motivation and joy were beautiful.

In December the snow came back and during Christmas holidays the Crosscountry ski stadium was already full of big and little skiers. Almost all kids belonged to a Ski club and Martin and Sofia were the ski's teachers of a group of nine kids. While Sofia was going up a little climb, she noted a little girl who skied alone. Sofia greeted her and she nodded. When Sofia completed the lap, she got close to her and asked: "What's your name? Are you alone?". Timidly she replied: "I'm Stella, my daddy is skiing, he is there, is greeting me". "And why are you not skiing with the other kids?", "My family and I recently moved in and I haven't many friends yet...and I'm also shy. I'm afraid that the other kids won't like me or may make fun of me if I fall down".

Just as Stella was talking, Sofia was hit by a snowball that caught her from behind. The two turned; it was Martin who was doing a battle of snowball with the other kids of the ski course but running away from "white bombs" with skis was not so easy! Martin called Sofia: "Come Sofia, we are two teams, let's see who can hit more rivals". Sofia studied the situation and said: "we are odd, and I want to play on even terms. Stella, you are on our team!". The battle started and Stella was very fast to avoid snowballs and also throw them to the rivals. At the end the amused kids exclaimed: "you are so strong, what's your name?". And it was like that Stella didn't never ski alone again and found a lot of new friends in her new valley.

Did you like this story? Enjoy to illustrate it, completing with the drawing.